From School Library Journal

Grade 5-12-This is an adaptation of Herman Melville's Billy Budd, a sea adventure filled with suspense and drama. Melville wrote it to express his views on right and wrong and on justice and redemption. Featuring full-cast narration, seven quality London actors give this reading a British authenticity that grabs listeners from the start. The sound effects and background music give the reading a movie-like feel. The CD starts with just enough of the beginning of the story to hook listeners, and then the host talks about Melville and why he wrote this novel. Then it's back to the drama of a ship at sea. This recording would be a great introduction to Melville's style of writing for an American literature class, and a great way to practice listening skills. After listening to this abridged version, students' interest might be piqued enough to read the entire novel.

Review

"The most studied and admired of Melville's works except for Moby-Dick." --John Updike

"[A] late-life masterpiece." --The New York Review of Books

About the Author

Herman Melville was born in New York City in 1819. At eighteen, he set sail on a whaler, and upon his return, wrote a series of bestselling adventure novels based on his travels, including Typee and Omoo, which made him famous. Starting with Moby-Dick in 1851, however, his increasingly complex and challenging work drew more and more negative criticism, until 1857 when, after his collection Piazza Tales (which included "Bartleby the Scrivener"), and the novel The Confidence Man, Melville stopped publishing fiction. He drifted into obscurity, writing poetry and working for the Customs House in New York City, until his death in 1891.

Enriched Classics offer readers accessible editions of great works of literature enhanced by helpful notes and commentary. Each book includes educational tools alongside the text, enabling students and readers alike to gain a deeper and more developed understanding of the writer and their work.

Billy Budd, Sailor has been called the best short novel ever written. In his brilliantly condensed prose, Herman Melville fashions a legal parable in which reason and intellect prove incapable of preserving innocence in the face of evil. For all those who feel themselves threatened by a hostile and inflexible environment, there is special significance in this haunting story of a handsome sailor who becomes a victim of man's intransigence.

Enriched Classics enhance your engagement by introducing and explaining the historical and cultural significance of the work, the author's personal history, and what impact this book had on subsequent scholarship. Each book includes discussion questions that help clarify and reinforce major themes and reading recommendations for further research.

Read with confidence.

A classic picture of harsh life at sea

By G. C. Carter

Not sure what prompted me to read this classic; it reminds one of harsh life at sea in the 1800's.

Bartleby the Scrivener

By Faye Ku

I got this collection because it contains one of my favorite stories, "Bartleby, the Scrivener". It might be the first story about the modern day worker :) What do you do when confronted with someone who suddenly refuses to conform to societal expectations? What if this person will not lift a finger to help himself? Whose responsibility does he become?

Maybe we each have a breaking point, some boundary beyond which the spirit would rebel and scream "I have received enough neglect and I won't take it anymore!" If I ever reached that breaking point, would my cries also go unanswered?

What is he saying?

By Al

Just about impossible to read, this book had no impact on me. I basically missed the main scene.
