From School Library Journal

Grade 1-3-The ocean is a playground, a traffic jam, a secret hideout, and more in the 10 rhymed scenarios in this underwater tour. Each quatrain is set in white type on one page of a photographic spread. "The ocean is-/A STAGE" where "These dolphins dance and leap above/Their watery arena,/Performing like a graceful pair/Of long-nosed ballerinas." The leaping dolphins are silhouetted against an orange-suffused, darkened sky, but most views feature animals and plants beneath the waves as starfish, a toothy shark, and flowery sponges appear in turn. A small note on the verso of the title page names the pictured species. Though the book has the appearance of simple nonfiction, no other information is added, and the colorful scenes have no particular order or relationship to one another. Touches of humor soften the repetitive rhythm, and the handsome photographs offer intriguing glimpses into the watery world. Teachers might find the imagery and the album format a pleasant means of introducing discussions of ocean life.

"Salt and surf and sand and waves,
The ocean's these and more . . . "

To the animals that live there, the ocean is much more than a huge blue body of water. For frisky sea lions, it is a fun-filled playground. For toothy sharks, it is a dentist's office. And for hungry otters, it's a cafeteria that serves their favorite food—shellfish.

These playful verses and stunning photographs will take you on an exhilarating underwater tour. Jump in!

Teacher's dream

By Holly Lenore

Terrific book! I stumbled upon this book last year as we did a unit of study on the ocean in my preschool class. Now, I have bought the book and look forward to reading it year after year. It brings great discussion among our young learners!

Metaphor Writing

By Cathy Lambert

This is a great mentor text for Metaphor writing. After reading this book, our students write their own metaphor book, using this as their expert example. The book is filled with strong word choice and meaningful connections. The students love it.
